The Moose Jaw Times.

FRIDAY, JULY 17 1891

Perhaps the best evidence of the progress which the Dominion of Canada has made during the past half century, is to be found in the Department of Railways and Canals. In 1845, there were 16 miles of railway in Canada; in 1890 the operated mileage was 13,256. The earnings in the former year were $15,251, and in the latter $46,813,826.

THE LIQUOR QUESTION.

We have not yet received a copy of Hon. Mr. Dewdney's new North West Territories Act, but from a synopsis of it telegraphed from Ottawa we learn that one of its provisions give control of the liquor question in the North West, to the Legislative Assembly. The North West Assembly is given the same power regarding licenses as the other provinces of the Dominion. This we have always contended is the only satisfactory solution of this vexed question. Nothing could be more unsatisfactory to all parties concerned, than the present state of the liquor traffic. It is neither agreeable to the temperance people or to those who oppose prohibition. The Permit System when first instituted, was, no doubt, a wise provision, and served a useful purpose, its object being to prevent liquor being supplied to the Indians by unprincipled white men. A wise and judicious use of the power to issue Permits by the Lieutenant Governor, made the law for years quite satisfactory. The circumstances of the country have, during the past few years changed to such an extent that at present it is found impossible to regulate the traffic by the issue of Permits. Railways now traverse the country, settlements have sprung up and as a result the facilities for evading the law and smuggling the prohibited liquor into the country have been rendered easier. Unless a law has the moral support of the people, its enforcement is an impossibility, and there are many in the Territories, who take the fact that the Permit System is unpopular among the people as an excuse for breaking the law. The vigilance of the North West Mounted Police, is without effect in checking the traffic, and at the present time there is as much, if not more, liquor sold in North West towns as would be under a license system. The people have demanded that some change be made. They must either have total prohibition or a license system, and in either case they claim the right to be consulted in the matter. If the majority of the people in the Territories declare for a license system, the prohibition advocates must submit until they can develop the temperance sentiment among the people so as to secure a majority for prohibition. To secure the voice of the people on the question a plebiscite is not necessary. Under the British Constitution, the people speak through their representatives, and when they wish to stamp their opinions on the legislation of the country they elect men who will represent their opinions. At the present time, we believe the feeling among the people is strongly in favor of a high license system. In the western part of the Territories, even the temperance advocates have declared that a license system is greatly preferable to prohibition which does not prohibit. Whatever system is adopted should be general over the whole Territories. Local option for each electoral district has been suggested, but the experience of those counties in Eastern Canada where the Scott Act was adopted a few years ago is not favorable to the scheme. The great objection to local option would be the difficulty in enforcing the law in a district surrounded by other districts which had adopted a license system and in which liquor was sold. However good a law may be in theory and principle, unless it is strictly enforced it is worse than useless. If this question is at least to be handed over to be dealt with by the Legislative Assembly, the people should make it one of the issues at the approaching election.

POLITICAL NOTES.

The investigations into the Tarte-McGreavy charges of corruption in the management of Sir Hector Langevin's department still takes up a good part of the time of our Ottawa legislators. Owen E. Murphy is still in the hands of Mr. Oler and the end is not in sight. Sir Hector and his friends are anxious that no obstacles be placed in the way of the fullest inquiry feeling confident that every one of the charges can be disproved.

"Manitoba and the Northwest have cost us too much already" was the burden of the song of the Liberal party, when discussing the resolution granting assistance to the Hudson's Bay Railway. With a single exception every member of the party opposed the resolution. It is the same old policy of the party which opposed the construction of the C. P. R., a vigorous immigration policy, and every scheme having for its object the development of the North West. And still the party expect support from the settlers in the west.

The Regina Leader is authority for the statement that the local elections will be held throughout the Northwest sometime this year. If Mr. Dewdney's new Northwest bill passes, the statement is likely to prove true. The enlarged powers given by the bill, to the Legislative Assembly will make the discussion of the different questions involved, of more than ordinary interest.

The Battle of the Boyne.

THE 101ST ANNIVERSARY OF KING JAMES' DEFEAT CELEBRATED ON THE PRAIRIES OF THE WEST.

A Large Turnout at the Picnic at Pioneer Lake—The Day Spent Pleasantly.

Last Sunday was the two hundred and first Anniversary of the Battle of the Boyne. The Orangemen of the town and district of Moose Jaw had arranged to attend divine service in the Presbyterian Church in a body, but owing to the downpour of rain which continued during the whole day were forced to postpone the service until next Sunday forenoon at 11 o'clock. On Monday a picnic under the auspices of the Star of the West L. O. L. No. 1599, was held on the banks of Pioneer Lake and was largely attended. The Caron Orangemen were joined by the brethren from Moose Jaw and Pasqua and the demonstration was the largest of the kind ever seen in the North West. The settlers with their wives, sons and daughters turned out from every part of the district to unite with the members of the Orange order in honoring the "glorious plous and immortal memory" of King William, Prince of Orange. The Caron and Pioneer people had spared no trouble to have the grounds in good shape and to make things pleasant for the picnickers. The weather was magnificent and the arrangements were so perfect that everything passed off without a jar. The crowd began to assemble about 10 o'clock, and by 1 o'clock there could not have been less than 600 people on the grounds. A large refreshment booth had been erected in which the luncheon was served by the ladies of the district, while at another tent lemonade, ice cream, fruit etc., was provided. The afternoon was spent in speech-making and sports. A procession headed by the town band, and drum band, was formed and marched around the grounds for a short distance, after which the crowd assembled to listen to the speeches. W. Bro. R. L. Alexander County Master of Assiniboia, acted as chairman and in his opening remarks welcomed the settlers of the Moose Jaw district to the picnic. This was the first gathering ever held on these great plains to commemorate one of the greatest victories in the history of the world. He was pleased to see so large a number of Protestants who met with the orange brethren to celebrate the event. Orangemen are not antagonistic to Roman Catholics. It was the principles of Romanism that Orangemen opposed. He denied that Orangemen was a political or party organization. Its principles were loyalty to Protestantism and the throne of Great Britain and to that extent it was political its members being pledged to support the party that upheld the Altar and the Throne. Rev. W. L. Clay was then called on to invoke the divine blessing on the proceedings of the afternoon, after which the chairman called on Rev. Dr. McLean to address the audience. The Dr. on rising said that he wished to congratulate the Orangemen of the Moose Jaw district on the large turnout and the pleasant afternoon. The present is an important era in the history of the Dominion and Orangemen would have a very powerful influence on its future. He had made special inquiries into the aims of the society and found that it was exceedingly difficult to place. It was not a political or a religious organization but its members were not willing for others to dictate as to their belief, either in politics or religion. The idea of building up a great nationality—a great northern empire, was the dream of Canadians and on themselves would depend the realization of their hopes. Greatness belongs not to extent of territory, else Russia would be the greatest nation on earth. Commercial prosperity and decay may go hand in hand. The foundation of greatness is Unity. Rome, Venice, Greece and other great nations of antiquity fell, not through lack of prosperity, but for want of a national spirit and a national unity. The term "Unity of Church and State" is a misnomer but there must be unity of the state political and the state religious, over which the great ruler of the universe should preside. Political corruption must be kept down through the influence of the state religious. There should be no interference of either factor with the other, but both should unite for the welfare and salvation of the nation. As far as he understood them, the principles of the Reformation and its watchword was defence of the Protestant religion and the British Crown. The nations which shut their doors against the Reformation were today in intellectual and religious darkness and bondage while the nations which accepted its teachings were grand in civilization and the leaders of the world. In conclusion he appealed to all Orangemen and others who were not members of the order to stand by the Country and assist in developing a grand Canadian sentiment of nationality in the northern half of the American Continent. The Moose Jaw Brass Band then played some excellent selections after which the chairman called on Rev. Mr. Clay.

Mr. Clay congratulated the Orangemen of the district on the good conduct of every one taking part in the celebration. In the past, Orangemen had to bear a load of opprobrium on account of the conduct of some of the participants in 12th of July demonstrations. Without looking into the principles of the order he had formed his first impressions of the society from what he had heard and seen of it. He was glad however to say that since he had studied its constitution and ritual he had changed his opinions regarding it. He had read the constitution through and could welcome Orangemen as the ally of the Christian Church. The principles of Orangemen as expressed in its constitution were loyalty to God and Truth and if every Orangeman would live up to those principles the outside world would have no cause to find fault with them. The encroachments of the Church of Rome called Orangemen into existence, but its constitution taught nothing but the kindest charity for those of that faith. They as Protestants opposed the errors of the Roman Church but took Christ as their great example of charity to all. He wished the order God Speed in planting their principles on the prairies of the west, and hoped that it would continue to flourish in the future as in the past. In conclusion he urged the Orangemen to be true to the principles of their society if they wished to make their influence felt for good in the upbuilding of the young Canadian nationality. Votes of thanks were then passed to the speakers of the day, and after three rousing cheers for the Queen the crowd dispersed to witness the sports.

DEATH ON THE RAIL.

A Work Train on the C. P. R. Thrown From the Track—A Brakeman's Sad Fate.

On Thursday morning at 5 o'clock the work train on the C. P. R. started out with a load of gravel for the track near Belle Plaine. The crew consisted of Conductor Barton, Engineer Emerson, Fireman Crawford, Brakemen R. Johnston and W. Smith. After unloading the train proceeded to Belle Plaine siding to allow No. 1 express to pass it, then started back to Moose Jaw, the engine running backward. When about a mile east of town, a man was seen driving two cows along the track. The engineer at once gave the signal for brakes, but the man made no effort to drive the cows from the track. This result was that the engine struck and passed over both animals, eleven cars were completely wrecked and brakeman R. Johnston was killed. It is supposed that when the front car struck the animals it was thrown from the track, and the remaining cars piled up in a heap. At any rate all that was to be seen when the crew reached the scene was a mass of iron, broken wheels and axles etc., under which they found the remains of their dead comrade. The last seen of the unfortunate brakeman was by those on the engine, who saw him in the act of jumping from the fifth car just as it was going over the hump. The rear brakeman Smith jumped from his car and escaped with a dislocated arm. The cows were brought to the C. P. R. station and the relatives of the deceased in Brandon communicated with, who advised that the remains be sent there last night for interment. It was not thought necessary to hold an inquest as it was known ever on his journey to try one on the train for the unfortunate consequence. The man who was driving the cattle along the track escaped from the scene as soon as possible, without waiting to see the result of his negligence. The unfortunate young man who met such an untimely death, was about 27 years of age, and had resided here for about six weeks. The said cattle had cast a plow over the railroad employees, among whom was universally respected for his quiet, unassuming demeanor. We have been unable to find out the name of the man whose carelessness caused the disaster, but whoever he may be, he should be severely punished.
